SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ralph Terry, home run ball goat of 1960 in Pittsburgh, pitched the proud New York Yankees to their 20th world championship Tuesday with a magnificent 1-0, four-hitter against San Francisco in the tinging seventh game of the World Series.

Lawrence Challenges PMS On Medical Care For Aged

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Lawrence took issue Tuesday with Pennsylvania Medical Society criticism of the Commonwealth's administration of medical care for the aged.

Last week Dr. Daniel H. Bee, Indiana, immediate past president of the society, said the program—the Kerr-Mills plan — "is poorly implemented, politically harassed and arbitrarily administered."

"That is absolutely not so," Lawrence told his weekly news conference, adding:

"As you know, we went into the thing very reluctantly but we did it because we wanted these people cared for. And we are caring for them. There is, apparently, a lack of applicants in connection with it. But we are giving it everything we have got."

Congressman Hit In Conspiracy Charges

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—U.S. Rep. Thomas F. Johnson, D-Md., and Frank W. Boykin, D-Ala., were indicted Tuesday on charges of receiving money to use their influence for dismissal of a federal indictment against a Maryland savings and loan operator.

A special grand jury charged their conspiracy and conflict of interest involved receipt of $24,918 by Johnson and real estate transactions of at least $3.2 million involving both congressmen.

The indictment said the compensation was in exchange for trying to persuade the Department of Justice to postpone trial of J. Kenneth Edlin, 64, of Miami, Fla., and ultimately dismiss his indictment of using the mails to defraud.

Edlin pleaded no contest and was sentenced in April to six months and fined $8,000. He was released last Wednesday from federal prison in Tallahassee, Fla.

Johnson, 33, will be a Democratic candidate for election to a third term three weeks from Tuesday. Boykin, 77, failed to win Democratic nomination May 29 after seven terms.

Boykin was reached by a reporter for the Washington Post moments before he boarded a commercial plane at Washington for a flight to Mobile, Ala.

He said he learned of his indictment from a newspaper reporter.

Will Return

Boykin said he would return for the arraignment and, he said, "the sooner the better."

"I'm anxious for the trial to come real quick," he added. "I have never had a nickel's worth of business with the savings and loans in my life."

Johnson could not be reached for comment hours after the indictments were returned.

Johnson, Boykin, Edlin and William L. Robinson, 37, a Miami lawyer, were charged in one count with conspiring to obstruct impartial operation of the Department of Justice and right of the government to service of the congressmen without corruption, dishonesty and fraud.

Johnson was charged in seven other counts, aided and abetted by the three others, with receiving specific payments of $17,500 in violation of a criminal conflict of interest.

Good Morning!

Some of today's movies are so long that it takes less time to read the book.

The battling Giants struggled to the final out when Willie McCovey lined a sizzler to Bobby Richardson with men on second and third.

Terry, a boyishly handsome young man from Big Cabin, Okla., retired the first 17 Giants he faced until Jack Sanford, his pitching rival for the third time, singled to right center with two gone in the sixth.

Terry Superb

This was the same Terry who threw the home run ball to Bill Mazeroski in the final game at Forbes Field in 1960. The 26-year-old right-hander was superb in this blue ribbon effort. Going to the ninth he had a two-hitter.

The 43,948 fans at wind-swept Candlestick Park rose to their feet and chanted "go, go, go" in football style as the Giants came up for their last fling in this first Series in San Francisco history.

Matty Alou, a pinch hitter, dropped a beautiful drag bunt toward Richardson and beat it out for a base hit. There was that big run, sitting on first base with nobody out.

Felipe Alou, Matty's older brother, tried to bunt once but fouled the first pitch, swung on the second pitch and finally struck out. The missed bunt proved fatal.

Mays Doubles

After Chuck Hiller struck out, Willie Mays came through with a smash to the right field corner, good for two bases. Matty Alou raced to third and stopped when Roger Maris' throw to Richardson was relayed promptly to Elston Howard at the plate.

Ralph Houk, the Yankee manager, came out to talk to his pitcher with McCovey, a 6-foot-4, 200-pound left-handed slugger, next at bat. McCovey had hit a towering home run off Terry in the second game.

McCovey swung from his heels and delivered a long foul that the wind helped serve into the right field stands. Terry, pitching carefully, threw once more. The ball rocketed back at Richardson, almost toppling the little second baseman. But he held on and the ball game was over. A foot—or maybe six inches—either way—and they would have been dancing in the street at Market and Power.

Skovron Scores

The lone run of this well-pitched final game was scored in the fifth with Bill Skovron coming home while the Giant infield completed a double play on Tony Kubek's smash to short.

Sanford had been throwing goose eggs, too, although his control was off and he was struggling. In the third the Yankees had men on first and second with two out but Sanford escaped when Tom Tresh grounded out.

Skovron opened the fifth with a ground single to left, the second Yankee hit, Cleve Boyer promptly followed with a single to left center, moving the Moose to third.

Sanford then made his fatal error, walking Terry on four straight pitches. That loaded the bases with nobody out. If he had retired Terry, the subsequent double play by Kubek would have eased him out of the inning instead of yielding the deciding run.

The governor termed Scranton's proposal a "stale proposition" and was also critical of a statement by the GOP candidate that he would limit industrial assistance to economically distressed areas.

"Anything that turns up the economy" should be the proper area of industrial development aid, he said.

Political campaign—it is "going terrific right now," the governor said.

He added that President Kennedy last weekend drew some crowds in southwestern Pennsylvania larger than those drawn by former President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The governor emphatically denied President Kennedy or the Democratic candidates were jeered by the crowds, as stated by Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom.

"Bloom is probably remembering boos he got," said Lawrence. The governor also was critical of Rep. James E. Van Zandt, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, for making an unannounced appearance on television with Sen. Joseph S. Clark, Democratic candidate for reelection to the U. S. Senate.

"He barged in in a disgraceful manner," said Lawrence.

West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder is conferring here now with Secretary of State Dean Rusk on what response the West should make to challenges from the Soviets and East Germans.

U. S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler had a three-hour conference in Moscow Tuesday with Khrushchev, his first official call on the Soviet premier. There has been no announced report on what they discussed.

Schroeder told a luncheon meeting of newsmen his government has "unlimited confidence" in determination of the United States not to permit the Soviet Union "to violate the freedom of the people of Berlin."

Schroeder and Rusk began their talks Sunday. The West German leader is expected to confer with Kennedy before ending his Washington consultations Wednesday.

It is understood that Rusk and Schroeder are substantially agreed the Western powers cannot permit any deterioration of their Berlin position or any new gains for the Soviets by what diplomats call "salami tactics" — slicing away the Western position a little at a time.

Another complicating factor in the situation was a new demand from Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula that Katanga should turn over to the central government all its foreign exchange derived from exports of the big Belgian-controlled Union Miniere company.

Informants said Adoula made his demands known in a letter written to Thant.

Thant is known to be pressing for an agreement that would permit the United Nations to begin withdrawal of its U.N. forces and ease the financial burden threatening the world organization with bankruptcy. Congo costs now run about $10 million a month.

Cracks Down On Truck Rules

HARRISBURG (AP) — Trucks operating wholly within Pennsylvania would be put under stricter regulations under a proposal made yesterday by the Public Utility Commission.

The PUC said it is considering putting into effect early next year safety regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission. These regulations — emphasizing inspection of equipment and physical condition of drivers—apply to interstate operations.

JFK Welcomes Astronaut At White House Reception

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a homely, relaxed fashion, President Kennedy played host in his office Tuesday to Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra Jr., the six-orbit astronaut's pretty blonde wife and their two red-haired children.

The President, sitting in his rocking chair, swapped small talk with the youngsters and discussed with the 39-year-old commander his nine-hour space flight as the four Schirras sat on a white sofa.

This was the windup of the glory days Schirra has been enjoying since his whirl around the earth two weeks ago. It's back to work now.

Fanfare Reduced

But the quiet presidential welcome for Schirra, whose feat surpassed all previous U.S. man-in-space efforts, was in contrast to the excitement of the official visits to the national capital of his fellow space travelers. The fanfare has been reduced sharply as space flight grows in reality.

The Schirras came here for the brief White House visit and for the astronaut to receive the Navy's astronaut wings at the Pentagon from Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth.

Schirra enjoyed celebrations in Honolulu and in Houston, Tex., where he now lives and got a wild, confetti ride through a string of towns in his native New Jersey on Monday.

Twelve-year-old Walter M. Schirra III left the White House with a presidential tie-clip as a gift. His sister, Suzanne, 5, got a new chain bracelet.

Family Affair

At the start of the visit, Suzanne looked shyly at Kennedy and said, "I know who you are."

The President asked her if she watched her father's space flight and she nodded yes. Kennedy asked her age and she held up five fingers of her left hand.

At one point, Kennedy asked Suzanne if she had seen the ponies kept at the White House for the two Kennedy children. Suzanne shook her head, no. The President took her and the other Schirras out to see the ponies.

Schirra, talking to reporters, said he planned to return to Houston Tuesday night and then fly to Cape Canaveral, Fla., Wednesday. There he will finish writing a report on his flight and then concentrate on design problems for the new two-man spacecraft, Gemini.

Newsmen asked Schirra if he needed a vacation. He replied, "I don't think I need any now. I had mine while I was flying."

Hope For Settlement

Word that the agreement was imminent caused U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson to tell President Kennedy on Sunday there is now some hope of working out a solution in the Congo. Stevenson also had optimistic reports from George C. McGhee, undersecretary for political affairs who is in the Congo, U.S. sources said.

U.N. officials working to implement Thant's plan were taking a wait-and-see attitude. Under the plan Katanga's mineral revenues would be shared on a 50-50 basis with the central government. A constitution for a federal Congo would be worked out and the Katanga gendarmerie would be merged with the central army.

Another complicating factor in the situation was a new demand from Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula that Katanga should turn over to the central government all its foreign exchange derived from exports of the big Belgian-controlled Union Miniere company.

Informants said Adoula made his demands known in a letter written to Thant.

Thant is known to be pressing for an agreement that would permit the United Nations to begin withdrawal of its U.N. forces and ease the financial burden threatening the world organization with bankruptcy. Congo costs now run about $10 million a month.

Never Intended To 'Purge' Himself

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. Ross Barnett said Tuesday he never has claimed he purged himself of contempt in the James H. Meredith case—nor has he any apologies for his actions.

"My position is," Barnett said, "that I have upheld the law and am not in contempt of any court."

"My conscience is clear," the 64-year-old governor said. "I am moved only by deep and abiding affection for the welfare of all the people of Mississippi."

At Oxford, Meredith, 29, strolled to class on a quiet University of Mississippi campus. A few buildings away, Mississippi Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson told law students they could refuse "to socialize or fraternize with an undesirable student."

Obvious Reference

Patterson mentioned no name. But his remark was an obvious reference to Meredith, a Negro, now in his third week at the state university.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans has ruled Barnett violated court orders when he blocked Meredith's admission into the 114-year-old, all-white university.

The Justice Department said Monday that Barnett had not fully purged himself. It called for a $100,000 fine outright and an additional $10,000 daily fine until he complies with the court's order.

"I have never taken the position that I have purged myself," Barnett said in a statement issued to newsmen from his office, "nor have I authorized anyone to take such a position on my behalf."

As one condition of purging himself, the appeals court directed Barnett to instruct all Mississippi law enforcement officers and officials to cease resistance and cooperate with the federal government to preserve order on the campus.

The Justice Department said Barnett's attorneys had shown no evidence the governor has done this.

The appeals court, composed of Southern judges, is now considering what penalty, if any, it should invoke against Barnett if it rules he has failed to purge himself of contempt. A decision is expected this week.

Barnett, who twice physically barred Meredith's enrollment, said all his actions were taken "because of my duty to obey my oath as governor."

Other developments:

—In Washington, the FBI was checking guns carried by federal marshals after Lafayette County Sheriff Joe Ford suggested a bullet from a marshal's gun may have killed French newsman Paul Guillard. He was slain in the campus riots. The tests were being made to "put to rest irresponsible statements," a Justice Department spokesman said.

—In Dallas, the psychiatrist named to conduct mental examinations of former Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker conferred with Walker's attorney Tuesday to map plans for conducting the examinations.

Ben Bella Gets Welcome In Cuba

HAVANA (AP)—After Washington talks with President Kennedy, Algerian Premier Ahmed Ben Bella flew to Havana Tuesday and said, "Algeria is and will be with Cuba."

A 21-gun salute boomed out as Ben Bella left the special Cuban airliner that brought him to Havana from Washington. He embraced Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Thousands of Cubans called out by the Castro regime for the welcome crowded the airport and lined the parade route into the city. It was Cuba's most elaborate reception since Soviet astronaut Yuri Gagarin participated in last year's May Day parade in Havana.

Declaring that "both the Algerian and Cuban revolutions are irreversible," Castro hailed Ben Bella's visit as a real event and told the Algerian:

"To visit Cuba at a time when the United States is redoubling its criminal blockade . . . when the Yankee imperialists threaten to attack is on your part an act of political firmness and valor."

Ben Bella, in precise, moderately accented Spanish, hailed what he called the Cuban revolution's "extraordinary progress" and said he was "deeply happy and moved to be in Cuba."

He reminded the audience that Algeria's ruling National Liberation Front (FLN) had granted only one golden medal of honor, and that to Fidel Castro.

"Comradely always reigned between Cuba and Algeria," Ben Bella said. "Algeria is and will be with Cuba. History has willed it that both people meet on the road to liberation."

No program for Ben Bella's official visit has been announced. He is expected to spend at least 48 hours in Cuba and to confer with Castro. A spokesman for Ben Bella denied reports, however, that the Algerian leader will try to mediate between the United States and Cuba during his Havana visit.

Kennedy signed the new tax revision bill Tuesday. He said in a statement that it "will stimulate the economy and provide a greater measure of fairness in our tax system."

The bill carries a $1 billion business modernization incentive feature.

Kennedy said that provisions aimed at the tax avoidance will distribute tax burdens more fairly and increase revenues. Various provisions are designed to reduce the avoidance of taxes on incomes earned by both American companies and individuals in this country and abroad.

Kennedy called attention also to the provision for an investment tax credit. "Along with newly revised guidelines for depreciation of assets," he said, "this credit will provide added stimulus to investment in machinery and equipment, and give American firms tax treatment which compares favorably with their competitors in world markets."

Congress turned down the President's proposal for setting up a system of withholding taxes on interest and dividend income. But it did establish requirements that such income and interest be reported. Kennedy said that this will be helpful, when automatic processing of returns is in operation by the government, in improving compliance with tax laws.

The investment credit of up to 7 per cent on purchases of machinery and equipment, is the principal revenue law change that Kennedy asked when submitting the bill to Congress in April 1961.

Three U.S. Fliers Die In Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Another American spotter plane went down Tuesday in South Viet Nam's rugged central highlands where Viet Cong ground gunners earlier had shot down two U.S. planes. Three American fliers died in one plane supporting an intensive government raid.

It was not known whether the third plane fell victim to Communist fire.

The American pilot of the third plane was reported injured.

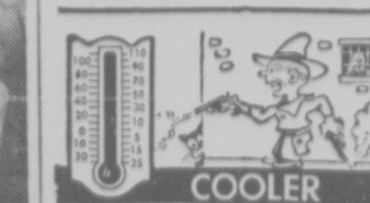

In ground action, an American major was wounded severely in an explosion.

The toll of Americans killed in action in Viet Nam has reached 24.

The Communists are believed to have moved an antiaircraft team into the area.

They shot down a U.S. Air Force fighter plane flying over the wreckage of the spotter plane Tuesday. The fighter pilot escaped with minor injuries.

Police Probe $2,100 TV Sets Theft

EAST Stroudsburg and State Police are investigating the theft of about $2,100 worth of television sets from Smeltz Electrical, Inc., 102 S. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

Police said there is no indication when the sets were taken from a store room in the building.

There were no indications that the building had been forcibly entered, although investigators said there was evidence that a hasp had been removed from one door and replaced.

The building contains a display room, repair shop and garage in addition to the store room.

Boys Nabbed For Entering 14 Cottages

STATE POLICE from Milford, Pike County, said yesterday that they are attempting to contact the owners of about 15 summer cottages at Lake Wallenpaupack that were entered by two 14-year-old Harrisburg boys last week.

The boys were apprehended Oct. 9 and released in the custody of their parents pending action in Pike County Juvenile Court.

Troopers said the boys ran away from home and went to the lake, where one of them had visited with his parents in August.

During a search for food, the boys found beer and went on a "rampage," according to police. Extensive damage was done to some of the cottages at the resort lake near Hawley.

The police are still trying to notify cottage owners in the Lehigh Valley area, Philadelphia and New Jersey.

Suit Filed Against Local Doctor

A $250,000 suit against an East Stroudsburg physician was filed in Federal Court in Scranton Monday.

Ervin D. Masten, Columbia, N. J., charged Dr. Lewis W. Hunsicker with malpractice and claimed he was made seriously ill by two injections administered by Dr. Hunsicker on Oct. 19, 1960.

The suit also charges the physician failed to make tests to determine his reaction to the medicine before giving the injections. Atty. Sidney Krawitz of Milford represents the plaintiff.

Water Resources Head Pays High Tribute To Walter

CHARLES R. Bensinger, Jr., Stroudsburg attorney and president of the Water Resources Assn. of the Delaware River Basin, yesterday paid high tribute to Rep. Francis E. Walter at the closing of a two-day water resources meeting at Pocono Manor Inn.

Bensinger, speaking at the luncheon meeting, lauded Walter's work in Washington with the Delaware River Basin Compact, which linked the federal government with the states of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Delaware in a pact to control development of the basin and its facilities.

During the morning, spokesmen for various watershed programs in Pennsylvania presented highlights of their programs.

They included Clayton M. Hoff, executive director, Brandywine Valley; John T. Carson, Jr., president, Neshaun Valley; Paul

M. Felton, executive director, Wissahickon Valley; Franklin C. Wood, executive director, Bucks County; Arthur F. Loebe, executive director, Montgomery County, and Morton Lustig of the University of Pennsylvania, who discussed the regional sewage plan for the Philadelphia Metropolitan area.

At a dinner Monday night, Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, Pennsylvania secretary of forests and waters, predicted tremendous urban growth and planning for the Delaware River area.

He said the river "will sustain the greatest conglomeration of heavy industry to be found anywhere on earth" and predicted Philadelphia will become the "industrial capital of the country."

Goddard also urged greater development of all of the Poconos as a playground for the expected "city" that will stretch from Boston to Washington by the year 2000.

"Open land will disappear unless such areas are kept clear for public recreation," he said.

Goddard called the $122,000,000 Tocks Island Dam and National Park a cornerstone in development — not a Coney Island.

GILBERT DUNNING, teacher of French in the East Stroudsburg Area High School, is scheduled to attend the Classroom Teachers' Conference at Bedford Springs on October 19 and 20 as the delegate of the East Stroudsburg Teachers' Association. Bulwark Of Freedom

During this week, The Daily Record proudly joins with all other newspapers in America in the observance of National Newspaper Week. The observing of this week is more than a joining of hands across the nation to accept the plaudits of the people whom newspapers serve every day of the year.

It is more a joining of hands by newspaper people all over our land to remind them of the common bond which they form to preserve the strong bulwark of freedom which they represent. For it is only in our great nation that the people enjoy this freedom of truth, the unbiased reporting of the news, and the right to hear and be heard without acquiescing to the mailed fist of the tyrant or the dictator.

There are other places in the world today where the press is not free; where the reports that the citizens hear and read are the prepared, censored statements of government officials, containing only what the totalitarian minds want them to hear and read. There are no such things as letters to the editor, free editorial opinion, or the privilege of submitting one's own ideas for publication. Such daring activity in many countries would only bring on a visit of the secret police and elimination of the source of new ideas.

In America, we have been fortunate since our founding fathers first declared the independence of the Thirteen Colonies. We started with a free press, and the heritage has been maintained down to the present date. It is one of the basic freedoms guaranteed by the United States Constitution.

No government or society can long maintain the support and confidence of its citizens unless its policies and actions are known, understood and critically examined. This is the primary role of the free press, which is truly the bulwark of freedom.

Jobs And Clean Streams

Governor Lawrence has acted wisely, we believe, in recognizing the concern felt by Wilkes-Barre businessmen and civic leaders over the possibility that enforcement of a state directive on pumping and water treatment operations might influence the Glen Alden Corp. to close its mines in Luzerne.

The Governor has requested Attorney General Stahl to arrange for a conference with the interested parties for a discussion of the effects of a State Sanitary Water Board order requiring the coal company to treat all water pumped from its workings before it is discharged into the Susquehanna River. The treatment process is designed to eliminate the acid content from the mine water before it reaches the stream.

The Wilkes-Barre businessmen point out that if the cost of complying with the directive is considered by Glen Alden to be too high to make its mining operations profitable, the company may close its collieries and thus throw more than 3,000 employees out of work. Glen Alden has already paid the Commonwealth $45,000 in payment of damages for a "fish kill" a year ago attributed to water pumped into the Susquehanna.

We hold no brief for Glen Alden. But when the employment of more than 3,000 workers is threatened, there is cause for concern. When this issue was raised after the fish kill last year, we pointed out that "this valley can not afford the loss of any jobs. There must also be reasonable compliance with the law against stream pollution. A middle ground surely can be found." It is in this light that the problem which now presents itself should be approached.

Is There A Doctor In The House?

By Mason Donison

With Scranton Campaign Caravan—This blasted caravan almost inevitably runs on a tight schedule from morn till night.

It's a working caravan in every sense of the word—not a lip-service caravan of a candidate or party relaxing with the assurance that victory is inevitable and that there is a need only for producing a passive show.

Every conceivable move counts: a pre-calculated risk—with the ever present hope of production results.

For example, at a small downstate radio station Mr. Scranton was asked to drop in and make a tape recording. Bill Scranton and wife Mary turned up at the appointed time (complete of course with rattling entourage of personages who completely swamped the small station's "studio facilities") and the "show" got under way.

As the taping started something went wrong. There was a delay. Not a hair flickered on either Scranton's scalp—although it meant delay of schedule. Smiles and light bantering were the order of the moment.

The difficulty corrected, the taping proceeded once again, this time in satisfactory fashion, but here's the picture: Bill and Mary Scranton hunched around a green cloth-covered table perhaps two-thirds the size of an average card table—Mary on a metal folding card table chair, pocketbook on lap, while "Ole Bill" sat on a straight-backed wooden chair, hands comfortably folded.

Yet—the incident was treated with all the seriousness and intensity of a plush big city television production.

Again, it illustrates the extent in depth to which Republican gubernatorial candidate Scranton is going in this campaign year.

For Pennsylvania Republicans this can be classified most assuredly as "the new approach" which may pay off handsomely. Perhaps one of the most striking facets of Mr. Scranton's approach to this whole thing of campaigning for the governorship is his complete control of himself at all times.

It is most noticeable at the end of a hard hustling day with the thump-thump of the caravan, as he turns up at a local dinner gathering.

There are the inevitable long-winded introductions and speeches by local political bigwigs, plus similar harangues by local candidates for office. After from one to two hours of this political pizzazz the time arrives for the main event—the speech by Mr. Scranton.

Somehow or other as he strides to the podium, the impression inevitably is one of having just stepped out of the shower (with towel of course)—neat, calm, completely collected and poised, or as referred to earlier by this column: "cool cookie" Bill Scranton.

It's that important first formal impression.

His speech delivery invariably is in finely modulated tones, voice almost never rising, but perhaps his facial expressions and gestures (often a quick unconscious scratch to the head) are the compensating factors, if any are needed.

What he has to say is in excellent context—and amazingly for crowd reaction, you spot an awful lot of open mouths, no snoring, no chair wriggling and virtually no sidebar chatter around the fringes of the crowd.

Forty-five-year-old Bill Scranton is a likeable chap and an appealing lad, of this there can be little doubt—but importantly to the campaign effort, it is seemingly rubs off quite well, quite effectively on his listeners.

Undeniably, as the grueling campaign caravan effort clearly shows, William Warren Scranton is one of the most outstanding Pennsylvania Republicans have produced in many a campaign.

Whether the bill of goods he is selling on the caravan is being bought is another question. Seemingly it is however in a healthy number of instances! The "purchasing power" holds the final answer.

The Monroe County Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has a staunch booster in Mrs. Arthur Zimmerman, Colbert St., Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Zimmerman, a lover of dogs, phoned us the other day to say that she "fell in love" with the canines boarding at the local SPCA.

"Honestly," she said, "if I didn't have a dog at home I would have taken one of those at the SPCA."

Mrs. Zimmerman wanted all of Monroe County to know that she and the canines themselves are receiving "Waldorf-Astoria" care at the SPCA.

We almost forgot!! Marty Baldwin, Stroudsburg RD, has four duos for the Penn State-Syracuse football game at University Park this Saturday.

Anyone caring to take in the rivalry-studded grid classic may contact Baldwin at his home or at the Olympic Reconditioning plant, East Stroudsburg.

Joe Pison, the Sears executive, looks more like a man from Madison Ave. every day we view him hustling up the Main St. in Stroudsburg.

Just is one of those gentlemen who wears clothes better than Lucius Boebe—the self-styled king of the wardrobe. Even Adolph Menjou can't carry Pison's "walking stick" when it comes to the best dressed title.

Two of the most energetic backers of the East Stroudsburg Businessmen's Association are Jack Bernbaum, the starry-eyed furniture official, and Leon Zacher, the expert on clothing.

Both young men of the borough have put their sound minds and physical makeups to good use in tub-thumping the businessmen's group.

It is no wonder that the association is growing in stature. Zacher and Bernbaum operate with the "forward look" philosophy.

A big green dragon with fire coming out of his nostrils picks them up in the middle of the night and makes them slave on his forest for fifty years without resting. Now, you'll stop telling lies, won't you, Willie?" "You bet I will, Mom," promised Willie. "You tell much better ones than I can!"

Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington—The way Undersecretary George Ball is proceeding, his tenure as the No. 2 official of the State Department is likely to be as short-lived as that of his predecessor—former Connecticut Governor Chester Bowles.

In high congressional and administration quarters, Ball is incurring increasing criticism and disapproval.

Congressional leaders are angry because of his persistent soft-pedaling of the huge Russian military build-up in Cuba—despite the growing mass of indisputable evidence to the contrary. Influential administration officials are souring on Ball because of his bossy and opinionated preachment and methods. This has caused sharp clashes between him and members of the White House staff; in one sizzling instance with Myer Feldman, deputy special counsel to the President and one of his most trusted aides.

The last of Ball's wrangling

The Allen-Scott Report

George Ball At Odds Over Cuba And Methods

with Congress over Cuba is far from over. So far this has been largely backstage, but the next round may be public fireworks.

Representative Paul Kitchin, D-N.C., chairman of a special committee investigating Soviet arms shipments to Cuba, plans to further interrogate Ball about that. At a previous meeting, his blandly soothing account of these massive shipments was caustically challenged, particularly by Representative James Fulton, R-Pa., who had just returned from a first-hand trip to the Navy's big base at Guantanamo.

The Kitchin probes are assembling a large and detailed file on what the Communists are doing in Cuba, and Ball is slated to be grilled on that.

Heartily backing Kitchin are two of the most powerful leaders in Congress—Representative Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee that writes all revenue legislation, and Senator Harry Byrd, D-Va., head of the Finance Committee that has jurisdiction in his chamber over these measures.

They sardonically refer to Ball as "the world's foreign trade ambassador with headquarters in Washington."

Ball's Eye—It was Ball's brusque meddling in a foreign trade bill overwhelmingly passed by Congress that caused the angry row between him and "Mike" Feldman, who was a member of the President's staff long before he went to the White House.

This measure plugs up a tariff loophole under which British midweight bicycles are flooding the U.S. to the serious loss of domestic manufacturers, a number of them in the President's home state. Although the bill was enacted by Congress without a single dissenting vote, it had no sooner reached the White House than the State Department strongly recommended a veto.

This was urged on the ground the legislation would hurt relations with Britain. The British Ambassador vigorously supported this stand with a formal protest of the bill.

The President instructed Feldman to obtain the views of Representative Mills and other congressional leaders.

Mills pointed out the legislation is entirely corrective for the purpose of plugging a tariff loophole that the British are using to unload thousands of medium-weight (over 36 lbs) bicycles in this country. Mills cited an earlier tariff ruling that gave Britain a big advantage in exporting light-weight bicycles.

"The sole intent of this measure," declared Mills, "is to afford some safeguard for the American bicycle industry. When Congress votes unanimously on legislation of this kind, there obviously is urgent need for it."

Agreeing fully with Mills, Feldman advised the President to sign the bill. "What do you think you're doing in telling the President to sign the bicycle measure? You couldn't be more wrong. You've got to back-pedal on this one."

"I don't see it that way at all," replied Feldman. "The entire U.S. bicycle industry is at stake. I've gone into this matter very thoroughly, and I am convinced of that. I don't propose to see that industry destroyed in order to increase British bicycle sales. The plain fact is the British are distorting our tariff law to their benefit."

"But you must consider the British situation in the light of the European common market problem," argued Ball. "There is a great deal at stake in these negotiations. If the President signs this bill, those negotiations will be much more difficult. As you may know, the British Ambassador has filed a very strong protest against this measure."

"I know," said Feldman, "and I also know it's about time you started looking at some of these problems from our point of view for a change. In fact, I might ask when are you going to apply for American citizenship?"

This blistering reply brought an angry roar from Ball, followed by his slamming down the phone. Feldman hasn't heard from him since.

The President has until next Monday to act on the bill.

Significant Warning—Senator Byrd and Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., have bluntly warned Ball they expect the State Department to fully protect U.S. interests in the forthcoming negotiations on trade agreements under the new trade liberalization act Congress passed at the President's behest. Said Byrd, "We expect our negotiators to protect the interests of our country and not those of 'world interests.'" And Senator Humphrey, told Ball, "In considering the interests of other countries in negotiating trade agreements, it is essential that our negotiators keep always in mind that their first interests are those of American producers and farmers."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, that will conduct an investigation of foreign lobbyists after the November 6 election, has a report showing Ball received more than $70,000 as lobbyist for Cuban sugar growers, and mill owners—making him the highest-paid foreign sugar lobbyist on record. The report, compiled by the staff of the committee from official records, reveals that Ball hired more than a score of other lawyers in his massive lobbying drive in Congress some eight years ago.

Times Have Changed!

DEAR ABBY: In regard to men wearing wedding rings, may I comment on the doubting ceremony, which I know you will not print because it disagrees with your "marriage is a 50-50 proposition" philosophy?

The whole business of men wearing wedding rings is silly and has no historical justification whatever.

The wedding ring is the symbol of bondage of females in marriage. It is the last relic of the collar and shackles, with which captive and purchased brides were (and still are) in some parts of the world) bound by their male masters.

Let me quote from an old German wedding prayer book, (1888): "The wedding ring is for the bride only, and is a symbol of her bondage, subjection to, and obedience to her master; a sign that she is now no longer free and independent, but that she is bound and chained under the mastery of her husband."

Yours truly,

Realm Of Stamps

By Ray Patton

National Stamp Collecting Week will be November 12 to 13 and will be climaxed by the fourteenth National Postage Stamp Show in New York November 16 to 18 at the 1st Infantry Regiment Armory, Park Ave. and Thirty-fourth street.

The outstanding exhibit at this show will be a Mercury capsule similar to the one in which Col. John H. Glenn orbited three times around the earth February 20.

In addition to the capsule, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Washington, is sending a six-panel display featuring photographs and other illustrative material concerned with this historic flight. The capsule that formed the "housing" for Colonel Glenn's flight is sixteen feet high, and the escape tower that he climbed through to safety after landing in the Atlantic Ocean is twelve feet tall.

The set-up in the Armory will find the display soaring into the heights of the hall, but a special ramp will be built so that spectators may view the inside of the capsule, especially its panel of instruments.

A dummy will be in the capsule so that visitors may grasp more fully the position of the astronaut as he made the trip through space.

The instrument panel is one of the most extensive in any machine operated by man, and was under constant surveillance and use by Colonel Glenn during his flight.

Search For Humanness

The Ecumenical Council, now being held in Rome, will not solve all human or even religious questions immediately. Nevertheless, it is a glorious effort on the part of a courageous and humane Pope, who denies exclusivity and seeks a path to human brotherhood in an era of rising hate.

The Second Vatican Council, as it will be called, meets to survey three great problems and to find, if possible, a road to a solution of each:

1. The problem of unity in the Christian world — if not final dogmatic unity, at any rate, an avoidance of anger in dissent and a posture of gentleness to all who believe in Christianity. Under such a Pope as John XXIII, this could be extended to all who accept God, the Natural Law and the hope for redemption, namely, the Jews and the Moslems. Against such a union of forces, the poison of atheistic Marxism would be dissipated.

2. The reformation within the Catholic Church—not dogma but customs and rituals which no longer fit the times. In this respect, many reforms have already taken place and more will undoubtedly come out of the studies that are being made by various commissions. The Christian Churches existed mostly in rural communities or in cities which were principally marketplaces. Today, with laborers working around the clock, with the automobile altering the homelife, with secular education taking the place of church-controlled schools, with families in big cities being unable to support or to house large families, with the increasing demand for the use of the vernacular in ritual, so that laymen may follow the Mass, and the additional demand for more lay participation in church affairs—these are only indexes to the changes which will undoubtedly be considered.

Some of these changes may not be popular with all the clergy, particularly with those who always reject change of any kind. The Council will therefore not be altogether peaceful, although it is doubtful whether the public will know what goes on in the committees and commissions.

This much is certain. The Council would not have been called at all were not some bridge to be erected which would make it easier for the schismatic churches if not to return to the fold, at any rate, to be in harmony with it. A secretariat for this purpose has already been established.

Some of the less understanding Roman Catholics, particularly of this country, who have been taught to believe that their Church is the only true one, may be very puzzled at what Pope John is doing. They may wonder what Protestants are doing at this Vatican Council, even as observers. Their Pope realizes that an institution that is 20 centuries old occasionally needs refurbishing and the removal of cobwebs and barnacles.

Pope John XXIII is following a wise tradition in calling this Council at the moment of the life and death struggle between Communism and Christianity, between materialism and idealism, between enslavement and freedom. He is meeting his age as the Council of Trent (1545-1563) met its age.

3. Finally, the human mind cannot reject a century of scientific invention and discovery. We not only know the whole of the Earth but we know beyond the Earth into space. We shall soon sit on the moon and perhaps on other planets. We know more about genetics and many accepted notions about the nature of Man are really primitive.

We also experience a curious phenomenon—one very difficult to understand, namely, that the more we know about the physical sciences, the less we know about Man and how Man is to govern himself individually and collectively. We can cure many forms of cancer and have wiped out numerous diseases, but more human beings than ever before suffer from various mental and moral disturbances. Peace and order are disappearing from the face of the Earth. Immorality, which horrified less knowledgeable societies, are accepted in our era as mere deviations from the normal, and shameless exhibition of improprieties is accepted as a mark of liberty.

The Council cannot avoid noticing these manifestations. Social science cannot replace Moral Law nor can humanism replace God. As materialism is an exaggeration of certain values, so may freedom become such a rot as to destroy not only the individual but society if unrestrained by morality.

The Council's dicta on these matters may be totally revolutionary.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Anybody who has ever given a big heave to lift something that looked heavy and promptly punched themselves in the mouth can recognize how disconcerting it can be to be fooled by your eye. The fact that the new lot of copy paper was cut one inch narrower than the regulation size delivered much the same sort of sneaky blow last night.

In filling a page in a newspaper, an editor gets used to having a certain amount of typed copy fill a certain amount of type space and when it doesn't all sorts of old maneuverings are necessary. There is nothing too static about newspaper work in general but when it comes to filling space or writing headlines the mechanical laws are as immutable as those of the Medes and Persians, whatever they were.

A certain number of letters fill a line and a certain number of lines fill a column and hollering, screaming and kicking the waste-basket won't squeeze one half letter more in a head than only takes 11 characters.

Speaking of characters, between all the office arguments about politics and the World Series, it's hard to concentrate on church homecoming services and lodge meetings. The World Series is over, during the course of which I knit up two sweaters. But the political race is just warming up and I've run out of yarn.

Meanwhile, everybody seems to be running out of clothes to wear in this warm fall weather. You feel silly coming out in light summer cottons but you bake in anything else.

Not that I'm complaining. Too soon the winds will blow, the fuel bills will shoot up and we'll be freezing. There's a softness to the air that smells of fallen leaves and apples. There are piles of leaves along the street that just cry to be jumped in, and gutters full of leaves that need to be scooped through. But it's a hectic heck of a time of the year to develop Spring fever.

Foreign Policy In Far East Attacked In Book Reviewed For Local DAR

A review of the controversial book, "A Nation of Sheep" by Lederer, was given by Rev. Harold C. Eaton at the meeting of the Jacob Stroud Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution on Monday night at the Stroud Community House.

The meeting was held in honor of the new citizens who have been naturalized during the past year in this area.

Describing the book as a disturbing, soul-shaking experience, Mr. Eaton summarized its message: "Lack of knowledge has made us a nation of sheep", making the reader feel that there is something unspeakably wrong with our foreign relations policy.

William J. Lederer, the author, is an Annapolis graduate who served as assistant to the Commander in the Pacific. He is a specialist in Southeast Asian affairs and is the Far East Editorial representative for the Reader's Digest.

Lederer outlines what has happened to American money allocated to Laos, Thailand, Formosa and Korea.

He charges that in Laos, a corridor for Communists, we have spent 45 million dollars a year and stationed an army of 25,000 there only to have our money gobbled up by local politicians rather than going where we intended it to go.

In Thailand, despite the 60 million dollars we spent there, the Communist infiltration has been gaining ground.

Madame Chiang Kai Shek, who many Americans have put on a pedestal, and her husband walked out of Red China with half of the capital wealth, Lederer contends, and are hanging on to Formosa as a front, parading as Christians while they sell the U. S. down the river.

Sigmund Rhee also comes in for criticism in the book, which is characterized as a "fraud who rigged the last election to keep in power." He also contends that the 2½ billion spent for reconstruction was used for Rhee's benefit.

Children's Aid Studies Public-Private Agencies

The board of directors of the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania held a report of the state conference in Philadelphia when Stanley Brody, executive secretary of the State and Local Welfare Commission, was the guest speaker.

The Commission's findings and recommendations on public and voluntary agencies will be issued in December and will be studied closely in light of the changing emphasis on public and voluntary agencies.

The local board was represented by Mrs. Frank Patterson, Mrs. William Wells, Mrs. Horace Butler, Mrs. Frederick Jones, Mrs. Jesse Flory and Charles Jones. Other meetings are scheduled on the subject with a public panel meeting, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Citizens Assn., to be held Nov. 20 in Wilkes-Barre.

Mrs. Horace Butler presided at the meeting when Mrs. James Kitchen, chairman of public relations, reported on future plans including a recruitment campaign for foster parents.

Mrs. Harvey Pullen distributed donor pledge cards, asking members to sign up as donors for Nov. 14 or December 10 when the visit of the bloodmobile is being sponsored by the women on the board of the Red Cross, or to give at this Thursday's visit at the Seventh Day Adventist School.

Mrs. Frederick Jones gave the report of the personnel committee, and also announced that no applications had yet been received for the post of family service worker.

Charles Jones, executive secretary, outlined some of the current problems of children under the agency's care.

The statistical report showed that five applications involving 7 children were pending at the end of the month; with 31 active foster homes, 7 inactive and 4 applications pending.

There are 57 children from 23 families in placement in foster homes, temporary boarding homes, institutions or adoption homes; and 77 children of 23 families under protective or family counseling care in their own homes.

Garden Club Pilgrimage To Skytop

The Monroe County Garden Club will have its annual pilgrimage for the Fall foliage on Thursday, meeting at Skytop Lodge at 2:15.

Mrs. Madalyn Maloney, whose public speaking engagements now have been extended far beyond the county, will give a review "The Horse on the Carousel".

After the program there will be an opportunity to visit the gardens at the lodge. Each member of the club is restricted to one guest for this meeting.

Dinner Party Honors Two WSCS Members

Newfoundland — Mrs. Lulu Strobel and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Naylor were guests of honor at a dinner party held during the meeting of the Hemlock Grove Woman's Society of Christian Service at the church in Greenwood.

Mrs. Strobel was observing her birthday, and both she and the Naylor will soon be leaving for the winter in Florida.

A covered dish dinner, complete with birthday cake, was enjoyed by those who were present, including Blanche Grimm, president; Mabel Brown, vice president; Anna Mae DeFrehn, secretary; Margaret Oberly, treasurer; Marian Curry, Cora Krieger, Madeline Burey, Anna Carlton, Hazel Akers, Lena Roof, Ethel Schoenagel and grandson, Gregory Nauman; Connie Jeffers and son, Philip; Pearl Hause, Eliza Heberling, Cora Knoll, Ethel Whittaker, Nina Hopp, Mrs. and Mrs. Naylor, Lulu Strobel, Jennie Carlton and Emma Walter.

Birth Announced

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gearhart in the Williamsport Hospital on Sunday morning. Mr. Gearhart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gearhart, Stroudsburg, are leaving today for Williamsport.

Present at the party were: Denise Meyung, Rachael Meyung, Rosemary Vogt, Vallarie Vogt, Julie Ann Kazaka, Helene Hardy, Michele Hitt, Joann Neff, Alexis Komenko and the guest of honor, Chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Morba and Mrs. Leon Meyung.

If all of the men in Wyckoff's seemed to be wearing broader-than-usual smiles Saturday, and a few of the women were seen nodding their heads in puzzlement, the answer could be found in our downstairs Millinery department:—WIGS, and the dozens of girls-of-all-ages who crowded around to try them on.

I spent at least ten minutes, perhaps more, in our Cosmetic department watching the expressions of the ladies as they studied themselves in the mirrors—first as blondes, then tinged with silver gray, then as brunettes. It was better than a movie, and the dialogue was funnier than Goodman Ace could write. Believe me, not all of those who experimented with wigs were school girls. Some of them were their Mothers . . . maybe even their Grandmothers . . . and for every one person who looked well, there were nine or ten others who looked as though they'd been invited as honor guest to a Hallowe'en Holocaust.

Holt Wyckoff, one of the men watching the Millinery Madness with an expression of disbelief in his eyes, voiced only one opinion: "The only thing surprising me is that you haven't bought one, Mrs. Maloney."

Why should I, I demanded? THAT'S how I look when I get out of bed in the morning! Despite me, however, wigs are selling. Some colors are gone from stock, so guess what? We've ordered another shipment. IF you have an inferiority complex . . . IF you feel you are the least attractive girl in your crowd . . . IF your husband hasn't given you a compliment in the last six months, come in and try a wig! After one look in the mirror, you'll realize that you're not only pretty easy on the eyes just as you are, you're absolutely sensational!

Mademoiselle calls its shiniest, brightest, most dazzling new slipper for evening wear "Camelot," and its a real show stopper. Priced at 19.95 here at Wyckoff's, this slipper is far lovelier than was Cinderella's creation of crystal. The heel is high and very slender . . . the toe is very tapered . . . the sling back is daintily bare and sophisticated. But the fabric is the thing that really wins applause. Called "Fleck," it is a ribbed metallic. Since it combines silver and gold tones, it is a splendid choice to wear with either, and a marvelous accent for solid colors, including white and black.

If you're planning a big evening at the Fireman's Ball, or the office Christmas party, this slipper is one that will help you step out into the after-dark world, elegantly, romantically, and rather wickedly.

Some years ago, Joe and Pat Nazzo paid their first visit to Wyckoff's with a tremendous selection of rings . . . all kinds and styles. To the surprise of us all, they arrived in the Stroudsburgs once again over the weekend . . . their main intention being to enjoy the last traces of Autumn in the Poconos. Coming into the store Monday, they met with Doris Hinton and Peter Wyckoff, and the word is they'll be "setting up shop" once again today, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

This is good news for all of us who, through their several visits, have come to know Pat and Joe personally. Pat is a sweet, pleasant person; Joe, a bit of a comic who always acts out the stories he tells you, much to my delight. I like them both as people . . . you will too, I'm sure. Do come in and meet them!

Casseroles For A Crowd Can Be Prepared Early

By LINDA PIPHER

I'm going to be a gal of few words today because I have three long recipes for you. These are strictly for those of you who entertain and like to serve an elegant casserole that will stretch for a crowd, and most important, can be prepared ahead of time. Yes, they do take time to fix, but there's no last minute rush, and with a salad, rolls, and a dessert, you have a complete and filling meal.

Centerpieces are easy to fix in October because there are so many natural things available. For an informal buffet, fill a large black iron skillet with harvest vegetables — acorn squash, red and green peppers, yellow squash, big Bermuda onions, red onions, etc. Or spray a pumpkin with silver or gold paint and surround it with leaves sprayed the same color; use matching silver or gold candles (buy them; don't spray them yourself unless you don't intend to burn them). Or hollow out a pumpkin large enough to insert a one pound coffee can. Fill can with marigolds or other Fall flowers and your pumpkin has a flower hat!

This first recipe comes from Audrey Wyckoff, and she tells me it can be made ahead of time and put in the refrigerator. The dumplings also can be made ahead of time as long as you use double action baking powder. Audrey usually fixes them a couple of hours before serving them and keeps them at room temperature until it's time to put them on top of the casserole.

Audrey's California Veal Casserole

Serves 8.
Coat 2 pounds veal round steak cut in 2 inch pieces with a mixture of one-third cup flour and one teaspoon paprika. Brown the veal in one-fourth cup salad oil or shortening.

ADD:
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup water
Cover and simmer 30 minutes or until tender. Put mixture in a large baking dish, 14"x10"x2" or a 3 quart casserole or 2 smaller casseroles.

Heat 1 can condensed cream of chicken soup in the skillet used for browning meat. Blend in 1/4 cup water gradually and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Combine with the meat and gravy in casserole. Add 1 pound can cooked onions, drained. Top with butter-crumbs dumplings (recipe below). Bake uncovered in a 425 degree oven for 20-25 minutes.

Serve with a sauce made by heating 1 can cream of chicken soup with 1 cup sour cream. Heat to boiling.

Butter Crumb Dumplings
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder—(double action)
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon dry onion flakes
1 tablespoon poppy seeds (optional)
1/4 cup salad oil
1 cup milk
Stir until moistened. Drop by rounded tablespoons into mixture of 1/4 cup butter, melted, and 1 cup dry bread crumbs. Roll into balls to coat well.

This next recipe comes from Mrs. Grace Hess; she served it last week, and it was delicious. The flavor was so unusual that we couldn't guess the ingredients. Again, this is filling enough with a salad and rolls.

Grace's Crab Casserole
1 package frozen, or 1 pound washed fresh, spinach
1 1/2 cups grated process sharp American cheese
1 cup flaked fresh or canned crab meat
1 tablespoon fresh, frozen, or canned lemon juice
1 minced small onion
1 6 oz. can tomato paste—(two-thirds cup)
1 cup commercial sour cream
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Dash nutmeg
1 tablespoon sherry or cooking sherry

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees. Cook spinach until barely tender; drain. Sift with scissors coarsely. Spread in greased 1 or 1 1/2 quart casserole, or in 4 individual baking dishes; sprinkle with half of cheese, crab meat, then with lemon juice. Mix onion, tomato paste, sour cream, salt, pepper, nutmeg, sherry; pour over all in casserole. Top with rest of cheese. Bake, uncovered, 30 minutes. Or refrigerate and bake later for 40 minutes in a 350 degree oven.

A friend of mine from New Rochelle, N.Y., sent me this recipe. She was served this elegant casserole at a dinner party along with a jellied shrimp salad and a big bowl of steamed rice. She was so impressed, she asked the hostess for the recipe.

Party

Chicken and Ham Casserole
1 cup flour
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons powdered savory
4 chicken breasts split—8 halves
1/4 pound butter
4 thin slices pre-cooked ham
1 pound mushrooms wiped (pick out 5 of the prettiest, slice them and chop the rest)
2 onions, peeled and chopped
2 cloves garlic, peel and crush
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1/4 teaspoon mace
1 cup chicken broth (or 1/2 cup each chicken broth and dry sherry)
2 teaspoons light brown sugar
1/4 cup orange juice
2 heads Belgian endive, quartered (or lettuce or 8 hearts of celery)
1 (10 oz.) package frozen peas
Place flour, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, and 1 teaspoon savory in paper bag and shake to blend. Lightly dredge chicken breasts by shaking them in the seasoned flour. Brown chicken in 1/4 cup melted butter, adding more butter as needed. When golden brown, remove chicken breasts and drain on paper toweling. Trim slices of ham of extra fat, cut in half lengthwise and roll up, securing with a toothpick. Brown ham lightly and drain on paper toweling. To the same skillet add remaining butter, if any, the chopped mushrooms, onions, garlic, parsley, 1/4 teaspoon savory, 1 teaspoon salt, pinch pepper, mace, and saute until mushrooms and onions are tender. Add chicken broth (and if you like, the sherry), brown sugar and orange juice. Cook, stirring, for about 5 minutes. Now, as artistically as possible, arrange chicken breasts and ham rolls (remove toothpicks) in a large round shallow baking dish. Pour mushroom-onion mixture over all.

Saute the sliced mushrooms in a little butter and place these around the pieces of chicken and ham along with the quartered endive. Cover casserole tightly with aluminum foil and bake in a moderately slow oven, 325, for 1 hour. Remove foil, baste well with the juices. Break frozen peas into clusters and place them in the casserole. Bake for about 15 minutes more, basting frequently, until peas are just done. Serve at once. Makes 6-8 servings. (Endive and peas can be omitted if desired).

By Roberta Fleming Roesech

"Every time I hear or read what other people are doing, I get all fired up to add more spice to my own life," writes a reader. "But then, whenever I sit down and think about getting started, I'm never facing the right time to begin because wherever I look, there are countless little loose ends that must get squared away first."

Always More To Do
"Somehow, though, I always find that when one crop of loose ends gets stashed away, others take their place and sit around crying to be done. And this can be terribly frustrating!"
"And this is the story of my life," the reader finishes. "So I certainly wish I knew at least a few of the ways to make other people's 'secrets of success' get working for me."

Start Working Now
Frankly, the first not-so-secret secret of succeeding is to get on the job yourself and realize now that there'll probably never be a "right time" for seasoning your life with more spice!
Any way you look at it, there will always be loose ends, odd jobs, family commitments, a not-so-good state of health and many other things waiting around to hold you back.

Don't Wait Around
If you insist upon waiting for the right time to meet opportunity or to say "Yes" when opportunity meets you, your chances of putting much life into living are as slim as a model's waistline.

Consequently, instead of settling back and letting the years go by while you sit, put yourself under the starting gun, oil up your getting machinery and take a chance on starting what you want to do — now!

Chances are this will work for you as well as it has worked for other people, because you don't need to have things letter-perfect before you give yourself your starting signal.

Enthusiasm And Daring
You do have to have an interest that will keep your enthusiasm charging, though. And you must be brave enough to put your feet in the water to see just how it feels!

(If you'd like to receive the pamphlet "Pointers To Finding Your Basic Interest", send me your request and a stamped, self-addressed envelope in care of this newspaper.)

New All-America Roses A "Must" For Next Year's Prize Garden

By Dr. Cynthia Westcott
The Plant Doctor

With the choice of new roses for your fall planting at hand, I'm reminded of what Dr. James Alexander Gamble once published about his idea of what a perfect — or at least a near perfect — garden rose should be.

According to this noted rose expert, it should be a strong, vigorous plant with evergreen foliage resistant to disease, one that produces a fine shaped bud and open bloom with fragrance, gives all-summer bloom that is lasting, stylish and one which, when you approach, looks directly up at you saying in all its glory, "Here I am!"

Royal Highness, one of the two All-America Rose Selections for 1963, comes closer to filling Dr. Gamble's requirements than any rose I have ever grown. Royal Highness says "Here I am" with its regal bearing (never a hint of a weak neck), its long patrician buds, its high-centered exhibition flowers (never balling, never split) and its many-petaled open blooms 6 inches across with a soft pastel pink in the center and a bit lighter tint toward the edge.

In my new garden — set out in late April with advance plants of this new winner — Royal Highness was the first hybrid tea to bloom and that first flower lasted a week in 90 degree heat. Now, near the end of its first season, the 4-foot bushes are so clothed to the base with large, heavy, very dark green, lustrous leaves that I cannot see to count the many firm canes that have developed.

The bloom has been abundant and almost continuous through the summer and each flawless bud has been produced singly on a long firm stem. The fragrance of this regal winner is a bit elusive, but it's definitely there for those who do not require a scent as powerful as that of Crimson Glory or Pink Peace.

If you wish to win blue ribbons, if you wish the coolness of alabaster in your garden on a hot summer day, if you want one exquisite bloom to take to a show, or if you thrill to beauty of form, Royal Highness should be first on your list for fall planting.

TROPICANA, the other prize-winning 1963 AARS winner is the exact opposite of its royal companion. It virtually shouts "Here I am" with its brilliant unadulterated orange blooms. This color is good to the last petal; there is no change on aging or in summer heat. The 4 to 5 inch flowers are more neighborly than regal and they are produced in groups as well as on single stems. Fortunately, this vibrant hybrid tea has finally been released to an impatient American audience after amassing a long list of impressive international awards.

It's every bit a champion, deserving of its 1963 AARS citation.

Tropicana is an excellent greenhouse as well as garden rose, the cut flowers lasting longer than most. My bushes are 3 1/2 to 4 feet high, are well clothed with finely colored leaves that are perhaps more mildew-resistant than the foliage of most other roses.

Tropicana is certainly a "must have" rose for fall planting, but in setting out this autumn do think about how its remarkable color will look with its companions next June. You may shudder then if you place it next to bright pinks like Show Girl or Pink Favorite or Pink Peace. Tropicana would not really clash with the pale pink of Royal Highness but the almost pure white of Garden Party (AARS winner of 1960) would be a better buffer.

In my garden Tropicana's unmatched orange is flanked by the golden King's Ransom (a 1962 AARS winner) and reddish Orange Flame with a bed on beyond of orange and yellow marigolds. Everyone exclaims about the stunning yet eye-pleasing array of colors.

Gardeners are lucky to have two unusual new roses like Tropicana and Royal Highness available for the first time this autumn. And, since the climate is right for fall planting in this region, these two All-America Roses for 1963 definitely belong in next year's garden and will get a good jump on spring if planted now.

Dr. Cynthia Westcott, nationally known as The Plant Doctor and as an author and lecturer on gardening, is chairman of the She received the Gold Honor Medal Research Committee and Trustee of the American Rose Society in 1960.

HIGHEST ROSE HONORS: Royal Highness, cited for world honors with its 1963 All-America Rose Selection award, is first available for planting this fall. This remarkable hybrid tea produces prize-winning blooms measuring 5 to 5 1/2 inches across in an exquisite shell-pink color. Continuously in bloom on an exuberantly growing plant, Royal Highness is a garden "must."

Hair Color No Clue To Identification Today

In these days when a woman may change the color of her hair almost as often as she changes her mind, the value of color of hair as an aid to identification has declined to almost zero. In recognition of that fact, the Motor Vehicles Department of New York has eliminated the question about color of hair from drivers' licenses. With equal gallantry, the Department also eliminated the question about weight.

The campaign for similar action by other states is being waged by a famous haircoloring company. As early as 1961, the company wrote to heads of motor vehicles departments in every state to point out the unreasonableness of requiring a woman's haircoloring to match the shade originally designated on her license.

With New York having thrown in the towel, the haircoloring company now has renewed its drive to do away with what it considers an outmoded regulation in every state.

Checking with the local State Police, the Daily Record discovered that while applicants for drivers' licenses are asked to give the color of their hair and eyes, such information is not carried on as far as the driver's license itself, from which it has been eliminated for a number of years.

The reasoning behind requiring it on an applicant may be that the department feels that a woman might possibly keep the same hair color from the time she applies for a license until she presents herself for her driving test. But they can't even be too sure of that.

Friendly Society At Zion Church

The Friendly Society of Zion United Church of Christ had a social hour following their October meeting at the church.

Present were: Martha Tinney, Helen Gruber, Laura Marsh, Hazel Bird, Clara Ruth, Emily Van Etten, Lida Gregory, Esther Blatt, Laura Stout, Alma Diehl and Lydia Kirkhuff.

The November meeting will be held in the social room of the church.

Thanksgiving Boxes Are Planned

The Ladies Aux. to the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union planned the boxes they will pack for the County Home for Thanksgiving time. They will include homemade goodies.

At the business meeting held at the CLU Club, Mrs. Carole Burros was welcomed as a new member. Color slides of New Mexico where shown by Mrs. Sarah Lambert.

Hostesses were Mrs. Marge Bird and Mrs. Gene Marsh. November hostesses will be Mrs. Marilyn Pappillon and Mrs. Joyce Bonser.

Cottage Prayer Meeting Set

Mt. Pocono — A cottage prayer meeting will be held Monday, Oct. 22, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Coberly, Pocono Manor, as part of the campaign to "Put Christ First" being conducted by the Mt. Pocono Methodist Church.

There will be informal fellowship from 7:30 to 8 before the prayer service which will include reading of the Bible, silent and community prayer and singing of hymns.

This will be the only cottage prayer meeting instead of the two previously planned. George Clark, chairman, announces that all are welcome.

Invited to Wedding

Friends and relatives are invited to attend the wedding of Miss Patricia A. Beards to Pfc. Norman L. Fish on Saturday at 2 p.m. at the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

Pvt. Besecker Training At Ft. Jackson

PVT. Carl D. Besecker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Besecker, Tannersville, has begun his Basic Combat Training at Fort Jackson, S. C., where he has been assigned to Company C, 18 Battalion, 5th Training Regiment of the U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry.

This is the first phase of his six months active duty training with the Army and a part of the obligation he incurred upon enlisting in the Army Reserve.

During his basic training he will be introduced to a wide variety of infantry skills, along with intensive physical conditioning. He will attend classes in the traditions of the service, character guidance, and the role of the Army in the world today. Many of his instructors are combat veterans of World War II and the Korean conflict.

Fort Jackson uses the U. S. Army's TRAINFIRE method of teaching rifle marksmanship. Simulating actual battle conditions, TRAINFIRE enables the Soldier to become a better rifleman in less time. Under the program, the trainee fires at pop-up targets at unknown distances on terrain which duplicates combat areas.

Welsh At Naval Pre-Flight

AVIATION Officer Candidate James R. Welsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Welsh of 1067 Fritz Ave., Stroudsburg, is undergoing pre-flight training at the Naval School of Pre-Flight in Pensacola, Fla.

The 16-week course covers pre-flight and officer indoctrination subjects. Upon graduating, the class members will be commissioned as Ensigns in the Naval Reserve.

The 18-month flight training program eventually leads to designation as a naval aviator, qualified to wear the "Wings of Gold."

To Acquire Stock

NEW YORK (AP)—Transamerica Corp. has announced plans to acquire Title Guaranty Co. of Denver by exchanging about 7 1/3 of its shares for each outstanding share of Title Guaranty.

Pvt. Cox In Advanced Cleric Work

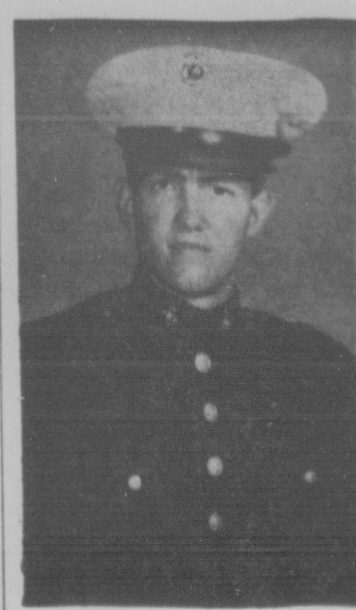

PVT. Charles J. Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Cox, Route 5, Stroudsburg, currently is undergoing advanced training in Company D (Clerical School) of the 2d Training Brigade's 7th Battalion at Fort Knox, Ky.

This course of instruction in the 2d Brigade, a major unit of the U. S. Army Training Center, Armor (USATCA), at the Kentucky fort, is of eight weeks duration. During this time Cox will receive instruction in typing, English grammar, Army correspondence, preparation of morning reports and many other skills an Army clerk must have.

He is scheduled to complete this course November 15.

The 22-year-old soldier entered the Army last July and completed basic combat training at Fort Knox.

Cox was graduated from Stroudsburg High School in 1958 and from Lehigh University in 1962.

Pvt. James J. Hardy

Local Marine Completes Training

MARINE Private James J. Hardy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Wilder of 505 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, completed recruit training recently at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

The indoctrination to Marine Corps life includes instruction in basic military law, physical conditioning, discipline, and other military subjects.

Three weeks are spent on the rifle range, where recruits fire the M-14 rifle and receive instruction on other infantry weapons.

Despondent Man Takes Own Life

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—Peter Repsher, 75, Shades Glen, died Sunday at General Hospital of a gunshot wound of the head self-inflicted yesterday, state police said.

Repsher, reported despondent for some time following surgery, first tried to take his own life earlier Saturday but was thwarted by members of his family. Later in the day he grabbed the gun and shot himself.

Editors Note: Another in a series of articles, dealing with state audits of schools in the area. They were compiled and submitted by Auditor General's Office, Harrisburg.

Polk Township School District Expenditures from the general fund for the school year ended July 5, 1959 aggregated $116,312.29.

Transit Workers Given Pay Hike

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—Employees of Wilkes-Barre Transit Corp. will receive a five-cents per hour increase over the next year under the terms of a one-year contract approved at a special meeting yesterday.

Three cents of the raise will be retroactive to Oct. 1, and the other two cents will be effective April 1, 1963.

The contract was concluded Saturday by negotiators for Division 164, Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America and representatives of the transit firm. It affects 118 employees of the company.

The package is made up of five cents increase over the life of the contract with all other terms remaining the same. The increase will bring operators to $2.13 an hour now and $2.15 next April. First class mechanics will get $2.23 now and $2.25 next April.

and State reimbursements and subsidies receivable during the school year ended July 3, 1960 totaled $72,881.

In the auditors review of cash receipts and disbursements indicated that certain expense recoveries were included as non-revenue receipts. The auditors recommended that the recoveries be posted as reductions of the applicable expense.

The audit of cash receipts and disbursements indicated two areas of correct or improved procedures. They were:

1. The obtaining of authenticated duplicate deposit slips in order that the composition of deposits can be traced to bank statements.

2. Increased accuracy in the classification of expenditures.

Members of the board at the close of the school year ended July 3, 1960 were Warren Getz, president; Lawrence Smale, vice president; Leon L. Zacherias, treasurer; Leroy J. Hinton, secretary (non-member); and Adelaide Berger, member.

Breezeway roof... 390 V-8 as the standard engine

RECESSED REAR WINDOW STAYS CLEARER in rain or snow. On hot days it opens for controlled breezeway ventilation. Monterey's overhanging roof keeps the rear seat shady, increases rear-seat headroom, and improves rearview visibility.

OTHER NEWS YOU'LL LIKE: A new 2-year (or 24,000-mile) warranty.* Wide model choice including a glamorous Colony Park station wagon and a bucket-seat S-55 convertible and hardtop. Options include a single-unit hi-fi AM-FM radio.

* Lincoln-Mercury Division, Ford Motor Company, warrants to its dealers, and its dealers, in turn warrant to Mercury owners as follows: That for 24 months or for 24,000 miles, whichever comes first, free replacement, including related labor, will be made by dealers, of any part with a defect in workmanship or materials. Tires are not covered by the warranty; appropriate adjustments will be made by tire companies. Owners will remain responsible for normal maintenance services, routine replacement of parts such as filters, spark plugs, ignition points, wiper blades and brake or clutch linings and normal deterioration of soft trim and appearance items.

MARAUDER 390 V-8 NOW STANDARD. And Monterey gives you a wide engine choice—optional V-8's that range up to a Super Marauder 406 V-8 with 6-barrel carburetor. Also available: 4-speed manual or dual-range Merc-O-Matic transmissions.

Yankees Take 20th WS

The Yanks finally got rid of Sanford in the eighth when a bad throw by Jose Pagan on Richardson's grounder, a single by Tom Tresh off Pagan's knee, and a right field single by Mickey Mantle loaded the bases with nobody out.

Alvin Dark, Giant manager, sent for Billy O'Dell, a lefty, and he turned in a brilliant relief job. O'Dell made Roger Maris force Richardson at the plate and then got out of the inning on Howard's double play grounder to Jif Davenport. O'Dell needed five pitches, all strikes, to escape.

Stiff Wind

The stiff wind, between 25 and 35 miles per hour, blew all afternoon while the Giants loomed fly balls into the gate. Of the 27 Giant outs, 19 were on fly balls, including five fairs, and four struck out. There were only four ground outs.

The victory meant a difference of about $100 to each Yankee and Giant. Although official cuts are not announced until later by the office of Commissioner Ford Frick, on the basis of 30 shares for each, a Yankee would take home about $12,000 and a Giant about $8,000. There was $362,578.32 to be divided among the winners and $241,718.88 among the losers, a difference of $120,859.44.

This was the Yanks' 20th World Series triumph in 27 classics and the Giants' 10th defeat in 15 Series. Not since 1922 have the Giants beaten the Yanks, who hold a 5-2 edge in their private rivalry that used to be a "Subway Series" but now means a coast-to-coast jet fare.

Came For Dinner

Giants Say Alou Would Have Been Out At Plate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "No, I don't think Matty could have made it home on Willie Mays' double in the ninth. He would have been out."

Manager Alvin Dark thus echoed the sentiments of the Giants that Matty Alou couldn't have scored from first on Mays' hit in that Matty Alou couldn't have

Dispute With AAU

NCAA Cagers Out Of Russian Tour

NEW YORK (AP)—The Amateur Athletic Union announced Tuesday that a Russian men's and women's national basketball team will tour the United States starting with games Nov. 8 in Madison Square Garden.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association, currently feuding with the AAU over control of American amateur sport, has refused to let any of its players compete against the Russians.

Following the games in New York doubleheaders will be played at the University of Maryland, Nov. 10; Nashville, Nov. 12; Sioux Falls, S.D., Nov. 16; Mount Pleasant, Iowa, Nov. 19; Lubbock, Texas, Nov. 21; and Denver Nov. 23 and 26.

From AAU Ranks

The American men's team will be drawn from AAU ranks except that the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics "all-stars" will play the Russians in the games at Sioux Falls and Mount Pleasant.

The NAIA represents the smaller American colleges and has remained aloof in the power struggle between the AAU and the NCAA, which represents all of the large universities and colleges.

Dodgers To Tell Coaching Status

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers said Tuesday they will make "an announcement of importance" at 10 a.m. (PDT) Wednesday. Presumably, the club will say then whether Manager Walter Alton and Coach Leo Durocher will be re-hired.

Alton's status has been uncertain since the Dodgers blew a four-game lead in the final week of the regular season and then lost the National League playoff series to the San Francisco Giants. There have also been reports that Durocher is in trouble as a result of a story that he second-guessed Alton after the final playoff game.

Asked how he felt, the Giants manager declared:

"I feel like this club had a great year. I'm as proud of them as I can be of them. They played just great."

The Giants dressed quietly and answered questions calmly.

Losing pitcher Jack Sanford sat glumly. Asked if he was missing with fast balls when he walked pitcher Ralph Terry in the fifth, leading to the Yankees' run, he snapped, "Certainly I was, why do you think I walked him?"

Walk Fills Bases

Sanford had struck out Terry six of seven times he had faced him previously. But the walk filled the bases and the run scored as the Giants executed a double play.

Third base coach Whitey Lockman said he held up Matty Alou in the ninth, "because in my opinion, he couldn't have made it."

Alou was on first base when Mays rifled a double to the right field corner. Roger Maris, the Yankee right fielder, made a quick recovery and fired the ball to the infield—and Alou stopped at third. McCovey lined out to end the game two pitches later.

Praises Terry

Dark complimented all his players and said, "Ralph Terry was tremendous for them. He pitched great."

Dark felt Tom Tresh's spectacular catch of Mays' drive to the left field corner had to be one of the key plays.

"He saved them a run, of course," Dark said, "but you don't know how it influenced the outcome. I've never seen such an even pair of clubs in the World Series."

HORSE OF YEAR—AGAIN? By Alan Maver

KELSO DIDN'T WIN A 1962 STAKES UNTIL LATE IN SEPTEMBER, BUT HE TOOK THE TIME AND WOODWARD PUT HIM BACK IN THE RUNNING FOR HIS 3RD STRAIGHT HORSE OF THE YEAR CROWN.

'Glad It's Over' Says Mound Ace

Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"Oooh, I'm glad it's over. What an ending. What a perfect ending . . . 1-0."

Ralph Terry, who set down the San Francisco Giants on only four hits Tuesday in pitching the New York Yankees to their 20th World Series championship with a 1-0 victory, just sat back in his locker cubicle with a dazed smile on his face.

'Biggest Thrill'

"It was the biggest thrill of my life," he said. "But 1-0—that's how close the teams were in every respect in this Series. The Giants are a great ball club."

"I'm sure glad he hit that ball right at somebody," said Manager Ralph Houk. "He couldn't have hit it much better. But I don't care how hard they hit them if they hit them at somebody." Houk said in the jubilation of the Yankees dressing room.

Houk was talking about the rifle shot line drive that Willie McCovey of the San Francisco Giants hit at Bobby Richardson to end the game.

'A Squeaker'

"Phew, what a ball game," Houk exclaimed. "That was really a squeaker."

"We made some good plays. (Tom) Tresh's catch on Willie Mays in the seventh inning saved the game. So did fast fielding by (Roger) Maris on Mays' double in the ninth."

"And the Giants didn't do anything to disgrace themselves either. They fought us right down to the last out of the seventh game."

Elston Howard, the catcher, said the victory was "the greatest game Terry ever pitched."

Nervous And Tight

"Were we nervous? We were all tight. It was the last game of the World Series."

As the shock of the hairbreadth victory wore off, the Yankees seemed to come to life.

"Terry gave them their 'bye, bye, baby,'" shouted third baseman Cleo Boyer, over and over. "Bye, bye, baby," is the theme song of the Giants.

Terry called for champagne, and a glass was handed to him. With the glass in hand, Terry leaned back again, banged his head against the back of the locker a few times as if to make sure that he was awake and not dreaming, and said, again:

"What an ending."

Many of the Yankees wandered around the locker room in various stages of dress. All had sweet smiles on their faces.

Houk abandoned his tobacco and unwrapped a cigar, and asked:

"Anybody got a match?"

May Replace Waterfield

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Owners of the winless Los Angeles Rams are considering replacing head coach Bob Waterfield, the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner said Tuesday in a copyrighted story.

There was no comment from the club's owners on the story. Waterfield, rated the club's greatest all-around quarterback in his playing days, is in his third year of a 5-year contract.

The Rams have lost five games—two by 3 points, one by 4, one by 6 and one by 10.

BRITE STAR winner Bob Engler (right) is congratulated by Pen Argyl Coach Elwood Petchel after receiving this week's award as area's outstanding football player. Engler, who scored three touchdowns and two conversions for 20 points against Jim Thorpe last week, has a total of 65 points for season.

Terry 'Eternally Grateful'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Thank God for the second opportunity. Seldom does a man get a second chance. I'll be eternally grateful."

Ralph Terry's hazel eyes welled up and his voice choked as he spoke with deep feeling of his brilliant four-hit 10 World Series triumph over the San Francisco Giants Tuesday which brought another World Series championship to the New York Yankees.

"I'm the luckiest man in the country," said the 26-year-old right-hander. "This has to be the greatest game I have ever pitched. More than that, this is a personal triumph for me. It wipes away two years of worry, two years of doubt."

No More 'Goat'

The reference was obvious to most of the reporters crowding around the good-looking, slender Oklahoma. Terry has never forgotten his "goat" role in the 1960 World Series. It was he who threw a home run ball to Bill Mazeroski in the ninth inning of the final game that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates the world championship.

"I've tried to forget it, but people just wouldn't let me," he said. "People were always reminding me of it."

Terry said even so he had almost forgotten that fateful afternoon of Oct. 13, when Mazeroski caught hold of his fast ball and drove it over the left field fence in Pittsburgh, only to be reminded of it by the fans this afternoon.

Hears Fans Yell

"I could hear people yelling at me in the stands, especially late in the game," he said. "One fan shouted, 'Hey, Terry, where's the home run ball?' Then I heard another yell, 'watch out, Terry, here comes Mazeroski.'"

If the taunts bothered him, Terry gave no indication. As a matter of fact, they may have made him more determined.

The slender, frail-looking pitcher who carries 180 pounds on his 6-foot-3 frame, was magnificent as he moved down the first 17 batters to face him. It was not until Jack Sanford, his rival moundman, singled with two out in the sixth that he allowed a Giant runner to reach base.

Raiders Replace Feldman

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Marty Feldman was released Tuesday as head coach of the Oakland Raiders of the American Football League.

The announcement, by General Manager Wes Fry, said Feldman is being succeeded by William (Red) Conright who has been on the staff as defensive line coach and has acted as director of player personnel for the Raiders.

Also released was Tom Kalmanir, offensive backfield coach. The rest of the staff, which includes offensive line coach Ollie Spencer and defensive backfield coach Walt Michaels, have been retained, pending a decision by Conright.

Conright, 46, played in the National Football League for nine years — two with the Chicago Bears and seven with the Rams when that team was in Cleveland. He served as assistant coach for two years with the Cleveland Browns, a year with the Cleveland Browns, and three years with Buffalo in the old All-America Conference.

He played college football with University of Oklahoma.

Miller Wins Grid Contest

BENNY MILLER, 1319 Coolbaugh St., Stroudsburg, came up with a near-perfect score to capture first prize in last week's Daily Record football contest. He picked 16 of a possible 17 winners, missing only on Army over Penn State.

Linda Nitel, 84 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, won second prize, correctly naming 15 winners and picking 65 as the high score. Seven other contestants picked 15 winning teams, but all were further away from the high score of the week which was 68.

This week's contest is published today. Join the fun! Enter!

DENVER (AP)—F.B. (Happy) Stutz tells of the time 37 years ago he took his last $200 and bought a racing greyhound. Now his kennels win more than $150,000 in purse money each year, competing in Florida, Colorado and Massachusetts.

Mr. Pigskin On Other Greats

Coaches With Imagination Have Modernized Football

By Mr. Pigskin
(Second in Series)

IMAGINATIVE coaches have occupied the college football scene ever since the sport gained prominence before the turn of the 19th century. Great names in this category were John Heisman, the man who invented the forward pass, hidden ball, tossing the ball from center instead of rolling, and scoreboard listing downs and yardage; Pop Warner, spiral punt and double wingback formation; and Clark Shaughnessy.

It was Shaughnessy who modernized the T-formation with a man-in-motion. This was when the now Chicago Bears advisory coach was coaching at Stanford in 1940.

He explained his then new system this way:

"Always in the past, the offense, tried to coil up the power in a ball, then explode it, splitting the defense. The effort was made to stretch the defense thin, then penetrate. Our approach will be different. We'll coil up the defense in as small an area as possible, then run around it, or throw over it. Shuffling our tackles and ends and shifting our guards and setting a man in motion — away from the play — will make old set defenses obsolete."

"Shaun" was so right as his records and his disciples show. Bud Wilkinson, Don Faurot and Frank Leahy were three of many who exploited Shaughnessy's "T" to a T and got good record mileage with their own innovations.

No man could leave out Amos Staggs when it came to inventive brilliance. Alamo, famous for his ideas at Chicago University and College of Pacific, is nearing the 100-year-old mark. But what a mark he left in football. Staggs had among his brainchilds such ideas as the tackling dummy, onside kickoff, huddle, direct pass, lateral pass, backfield shift, and cross blocking.

Men like Staggs, Warner, Dobie and Rockne were the forerunners to today's Saturday's millions of offered psychology and inventive genius to the sport. However there was a coach out on the West Coast in the late thirties who showed concentration was as much a part of football as the others. He was Howard Jones, maker of champions at Southern California.

Forgot Everything

Jones' mind was so thoroughly engrossed in the game that he passed red lights, forgot to put on a complete pair of socks, lost keys, forgot appointments, left members of his family stranded and even forgot his way home.

The molder of five eleven to Rose Bowl titles, three national championships, more often than not failed to reply to a question by Butts had quite a few good ball-players on his squads. Foremost were Frankie Sinkwich and Charley Trippi, both All-Americans and both good pro ballplayers later. Butts favors Sinkwich as his top pupil. Know why?

In 1941 Sinkwich quit the Bulldogs because he couldn't stand Butts' spartan discipline. Wally never acknowledged he lost his job. A month later Frank asked to return. Wally said it wasn't fair to the rest of the squad who had gone through a month's practice. The players voted Sinkwich back and he was subjected to inhuman punishment in scrimmages. Starting from the fourth team, Sinkwich had to sweat his way to his old familiar number one tailback post.

Despite a broken jaw, Sinkwich made All-American in 1941, handling the ball 344 times of 73 Georgia plays.

Sinkwich, after winning the Heisman Trophy, said, "Coach Butts is a driver, all right. But his driving made a man out of me."

Leahy was a taskmaster second to none. He went through a murderous daily agenda and expected his Notre Dame players to follow suit. Devotion to duty — football — was his theme during his great coaching career at Boston College and Notre Dame.

Right after World War II, Leahy's philosophy was pin-pointed. His star tackle Zjnovich returned from service and decided to bypass spring drills. Naturally the newsmen got to Leahy for a comment. He replied this way:

"If Zjnovich does not return in September in the most perfect condition," Leahy said in his precise manner, "we shall ask him to disassociate himself from our group."

Zig did, and Leahy did not.

Institute To Feature Dr. Appel

HOW Can social studies teachers in high school best prepare pupils for college? This is one of the questions Stroud Union teachers will examine with Dr. John C. Appel at the afternoon session of the institute planned for Friday, Oct. 19.

Head of the Social Studies Department of East Stroudsburg State College, and Co-Chairman of the Faculty Committee on World Cultures, Dr. Appel brings authority and experience to the occasion. After graduating from the Millersville State College, he earned an M.A. degree at the University of Maryland and a Ph.D. at the University of Wisconsin.

He is co-author of a high school textbook in World History; has also written numerous articles on historical and educational topics for professional journals, and has designed a series of six filmstrips for use in teaching World History.

In addition to the topic relating to preparation for college, the subject of World Cultures will be discussed on Friday. The high school teachers have asked that Dr. Appel recommend books on Asia, Africa, and Russia to implement their work with their pupils.

If time permits, consideration will be given to new approaches in the presentation of history as a means of increasing pupil interest in a most vital subject.

Those teachers meeting with Dr. Appel are as follows: John Kupice, Ira Nagler, Alfred Morse, Charles Winters, Morris Frace, Daniel M. Auliffe, Albert Buebel, and Miss Lillian Stark.

The entire institute is being arranged by the Stroud Union Teachers Assn.

Marries Mate Through Bottle

IMPERIA, Italy (AP)—He wooed her by bottle and won her by mail.

Lonely sailor Giobatta Calvi penned a love note, stuffed it into a bottle and tossed the bottle into the sea a few weeks ago when his ship was sailing up the Italian coast. He was married here Saturday to a little Calabrian seamstress who found the bottle, read the note and wrote a letter which led to meeting and matrimony.

Keep Eye On Stocks

By William A. Doyle

I have owned some Texas Instruments stock for quite some time. Somewhere I read that the market price of this stock suffered a tremendous decline. Did it fall before, during, or after the big stock market "crash" in late May? What caused it to go down?

A You haven't been watching your stock at all. Although this column preaches the gospel of long-term investments (not hot-buying and selling) it also stresses that you should keep an eye on your stocks, so you will know what's going on.

This is especially true with a high-flying stock such as Texas Instruments whose market price has shown wild ups and downs over the years. It went into a big slide more than two years ago.

Texas Instruments offers a classic example of a "growth" stock which attracted a great amount of buying and then, when the growth eased off, was subject to much selling pressure.

We can trace this back to 1961, when the stock sold as low as $5.25 a share. In that year the earnings per common share were 40 cents. Then, as the company's business grew and earnings increased, the stock became one of the most popular "hot" items on the market. Earnings per share soared to $3.59 in 1959 and $3.91 in 1960.

That growth made the stock popular with many, many people—sending the market price as high as $26.25 a share in May, 1961. It's easy to play Monday morning quarterback and say that price was too high. But, at the time, you couldn't tell that to the buyers who bid the price all the way up.

When the growth in earnings slackened off (per share earnings dipped to $2.36 in 1961) the stock lost much of its popularity.

Selling set in, sending the market price of the stock into an almost steady two-year decline. It sold as low as $5.25 a share in June and has since shown some recovery.

Texas Instruments is the biggest producer of semiconductor products in the U.S. with more companies going into that field.

competition has become keen—trimming profit margins. Texas Instruments is also active in other electronics and "space age" fields. Its earnings for 1962 are expected to be moderately higher than in 1961. The company is considered a solid outfit, with a great deal of technical know-how. Earnings are expected to improve in the years ahead.

So, the stock is counted as a good long-range growth situation—but not to the wild degree some people hoped for a few years ago.

Q. I own stock in a company which was formerly traded on the New Stock Exchange. The exchange "delisted" the stock because the company had an unsatisfactory financial statement.

Many companies whose stocks are listed on the stock exchange turn in poor earnings reports and other financial statements but the exchange doesn't delist the stocks. Shouldn't the exchange tell all the reasons for delisting a stock?

A. The exchange does give the reasons. The exchange has certain fairly stiff requirements a company must meet for listing, so that the company's stock can be traded on the exchange.

When a company fails to meet those requirements, the exchange takes action to delist the stock. And the exchange makes a public announcement of which requirement or requirements were not met.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Horn Says

Walter Is

Squirring

"MY OPPONENT is going to run a 'Squirm' Campaign this year and he began it on Sunday when he came into the District saying that Cuba should not be a political issue. I say it is an issue," said Woodrow "Woody" Horn, Republican candidate for Congress for the 15th District, at a meeting of the Hellertown Republican Workshop at the Park Hotel, Hellertown.

Horn's foe is incumbent Cong. Francis E. Walter of Easton.

"Two years ago," continued Horn, "my opponent and the candidate for President used the Cuban problem as a campaign issue. They said that the election of Democrats would be one way to stop the spread of Communism across the face of the globe."

"We all know the opposite has happened. The Reds built the Berlin Wall; strengthened their position in Laos; and have taken over Cuba."

"The Administration said they would close the missile gap. They did. From 5,000 to 90 missiles. And now my opponent wants to keep it out of the campaign."

"He will also use his 'squirm' techniques to duck the high tax issues, the unemployment issue and his vote for foreign aid to nations that have built up their industry at the expense of industry in this area."
